Record-Keeping in Dairying Pays in Increased Profits

Production testing of dairy cows has increased rapidly since a Danish immigrant in 1905 called together some Michigan dairy farmers to organize the first dairy herd improvement association in the United States.

W. S. Griffith, dairy specialist at VPI, says that at the end of 1958 there were 1,548,885 cows enrolled in the DHIA program. A summary of records of the first year of testing in 1906 showed that 239 cows enrolled averaged 5,300 pounds of milk and 215 pounds of butterfat.

Virginia ranked 7th in the number of dairy cows in DHIA. California is first with 252,707 cows, followed by New York, Pennsylvania, Wisconsin, Minnesota, and Illinois.

There are good reasons for the DHIA program to have attracted such widespread interest, Griffith says. Every herd, good or poor, has a bottom cow. In most herds this bottom cow does not pay for its keep. Complete production records tell exactly what each cow is doing, and point to the cows which should be culled. Guessing is expensive. Cows should be culled intelligently by the use of records.

By knowing how much milk and butterfact each cow produces, the dairyman can better decide how much grain each cow should receive. A grain feeding chart, made by the DHIA supervisor, saves a dairyman more money than the testing costs. Some dairymen have reported that the savings made possible by using the feed chart will more than justify the cost of testing. Saving one pound of grain per day on a cow will mean savings of more than $10 per year.

Records will help a dairyman determine which calves should be kept in the herd. If heifers are kept from the poorer cows, the producing ability of the herd will not increase as it should. The record-keeping program will tell a dairyman where he stands in his breeding program. Even though the market value of milk is declining, a dairyman can still increase his profits, Griffith says.

GARDENING SEASON IN FULL SWING

The gardening season really gets into full swing in May .

VPI horticulturists say additional plantings of sweet corn, snap beans, carrots, and radishes can be made, and you can begin planting warm-weather vegetablets — lima beans, cucumbers, melons, squash, peppers, tomatoes, egg plant, okra, and blackeyed peas.

Be sure to plant at the proper depth and distance apart. Consult VPI Circular 639, "Vegetable Gardening in Virginia," available from county agents or the VPI Agricultural Extension Service, Blacksburg.

The horticulturists recommend sawdust as a mulch for home gardens. It can be used in two ways. You can spread a band of sawdust 4 inches wide and 1-4 inch thick over the row after planting and covering the seed in the usual way. This mulch helps reduce crusting and allows the young seedlings to emerge easily. The other way is to apply a 1-inch layer over the entire area after the vegetables are about 2 inches high. Pull out the weeds that come through the sawdust, but do not cultivate or mix the sawdust into the soil.

It is important to control insects and diseases. Another helpful publication for the gardener is VPI Circular 605, "Timely Control of Garden Insects and Diseases."

A sidedressing of nitrogen to leafy vegetables and sweet corn in May will increase yield and quality of these vegetables. Use 1 to 2 pounds of a quickly available nitrogen fertilizer per 100 feet of row. Do not apply additional nitrogen to beans and peas.

Where mulches are not used, frequent shallow cultivations are best for controlling weeds and conserving moisture. Never let weeds get a start, and remember that deep cultivation harms the roots of vegetables.

POSTMASTER WARNS ON OBSCENE MAILINGS

Postmaster Richard Wingfield appealed for public support today in the intensified war Postmaster General Arthur E. Summerfield has declared on the "ruthless mail order merchants in filth who are violating the homes of the nation in defiance of the national government."

Using one of the nation's cherished privileges to carry on their smutty trade — the uncensored letter — "barrons of obscenity' today are sending unordered lewd materials into our mail boxes, much of it directed to teen-age youngsters, Postmaster Wingfield said.

The materials offered for sale include filthy films and books, and dirty pictures, slides and related filth, advertised in highly objectionable circulars that are being sent indiscriminately to homes here and all over the nation, he said.

Postmaster General Summerfield has advised the local postmaster that $500,000,000 is being taken in annually by large mail order dealers in pornography and obscenity. Postal authorities here, as well as those over the nation, receive complaints from many groups. Nationally, complaints are reported from leading clergymen, schools groups, newspaper editors and alarmed parents.

During a recent 12-month period, the local postmaster was advised, postal inspectors conducted 4,000 investigations on obscene and pornographic mail and caused the arrest of 293 persons dealing in filth. This is an increase of 45 per cent over the previous year, and an all-time high, according to the Postmaster General.

Good Seed Important For Home Gardening

The gardener who does not plant good seed fails before he starts.

S. B .Fenne, plant pathologist at VPI, says the use of good seed does more to assure a successful garden with less effort than any other single practice.

He cites several rules for buying seed. Buy the best seed. The price should be secondary. Buy from reliable dealers. Insist on seed from recommended or proved varieties.

In general, get seed close to the source of production, from areas which are free from disease, such as western grown beans, certified potatoes, etc.
